

On current occasion. Our position on our involvement in Russia:

February 2023

To whom it may concern

Since its foundation, our company has lived by social values and actions.

The company's goal has always been to build good playgrounds for children, especially those who are unwell or disadvantaged. Playgrounds where they can gain self-determined, creative and free experiences that make them socially competent, risk-conscious and well-developed people.

In doing so, it is always the human being that is most important to us. Our actions are not primarily guided by economic interests, political developments or social trends.

Currently, there are many places on earth that must be viewed with concern. Ukraine, Israel and the African continent as theatres of war, but also the effects of the Corona crisis, social injustices, refugee crises or racial conflicts.

We must face all of these issues with prudence and reason, while not losing sight of our goal:

"Commitment to children all over the world - regardless of governments, skin color, religion or economic interests."
